

Jamie Milkovich - Coaching Legend

By Coach Coop

Many times when discussing Maple Heights Wrestling, the spotlight is usually on the Founder, Mike Milkovich, who innovated high school wrestling through superior technique and spectacular promotion. While at Maple Heights he amassed a record of 262-25-2 with 10 Ohio State Wrestling Championships in his twenty-seven seasons at Maple Heights. Then the attention turns to Pat Milkovich who at Eighteen years old walked on a Michigan practice squad where he was fifth on the depth chart, gained the starting position, and then went onto become a 4x NCAA finalist. Even Tom (4x Big Ten champion, NCAA champion), Dan (All American), and Mike Jr. get mention when discussing Maple Heights Wrestling, as they have all made great accomplishments in the sport. However, there's one Milkovich that seems to get lost in the discussion and that's current head coach of Maple Heights, Jamie Milkovich, a 2x All-American at Auburn University. Taking his uncle's idea of technique and conditioning along with his war-like strategic planning as a foundation for his program, Jamie Milkovich has kept Maple Heights Wrestling a household
