Lehigh To Partner With Service Electric Network, FloWrestling For Home Dual TV, Streaming

BETHLEHEM, Pa. – With Lehigh wrestling preparing for its home opener this weekend, Lehigh Athletics has finalized its television and video streaming coverage for home wrestling duals in the 2021-22 season.

All eight of Lehigh’s home duals will be televised live in the Lehigh Valley on Service Electric Network. With more than 250,000 subscribers, Service Electric is the area’s largest cable provider. For more than 40 years, Service Electric has been committed to providing high-quality local programming and television coverage to the Lehigh Valley with a community-minded approach.

This will mark the second consecutive season in which Service Electric Network is the television home for all Lehigh wrestling home dual meets.

For video streaming coverage, Lehigh is partnering with FloSports to stream the Service Electric Network feed on FloWrestling.org via the FloPro subscription service. FloWrestling is one of FloSports’ highest performing vertical sport categories and is the industry-leader for dedicated youth, collegiate and professional live event programming, news, analysis and original content.

Lehigh wrestling has regularly appeared on FloWrestling throughout the years, for road duals and tournaments, including the last nine EIWA Championship events.

FloWrestling offers an annual subscription that when broken down comes to $12.50 per month. Subscribers are able to cancel at any time.
